- 127 Post- Gupta- Hunnic period, Silver Drachma, 3.58g, most likely of a Hunnic king, who name ends in '-ditya', Obv: A majestic depiction of a king, riding a caparisoned elephant to left, carrying sword in one hand and holding the other hand out in a gesture of appreciation / benevolence. He is accompanied by a page who sits behind, holding the royal parasol above. Traces of Brahmi legend "... (di)tya" at 3 o'clock, Rev: Fire altar with three flames, flanked by an image of an attendant to right, holding a staff. The reverse looks counterstruck on an earlier type, with a few traces of an under type visible (Unpublished and unique type). Exceedingly rare.

This is a unique type of Hunnic coin to have come to light. A comparable coin is listed on www.zeno.ru (Zeno #199211), where the obverse depiction is of a horse rider. The note published on 'Zeno' comments that the typology is derived from the 'horseman' type Gandharan coins of the Alchon ruler Javukha / Zaboch. However, the discovery of this coin suggests that the type was in all likelihood an Indian type, and the inspiration undoubtedly appears to have come from the Gupta gold dinars of Kumara Gupta. The reverse depiction in both cases is of a Sasanian import and that points to a Hunnic origin. Unfortunately, the name of the issuer is not clearly visible in both cases, but a '-ditya'-ending is quite certain. There were many Hunnic kings which have names ending in '-ditya', like Udayaditya, Narendraditya, Poorvraditya etc.

The Gond kingdom was defeated by Akbar in 1564 after a heroic fight by Rani Durgavati who was killed in the battle of Chauragarh. Her kingdom then passed to Chand Shah, who was recognized by Akbar as the ruler of Garha as his vassal. Soon afterwards Madhukar Shah, the younger brother of Chand Shah, murdered him and gained the throne for himself. The date on the coin corresponds closely to Akbar's death and it is possible that Madhukar Shah threw off the Mughal authority for a short time, by striking coins in his own name. These coins are extremely rare and less than five specimens are known to exist.

Rupees of this type were attributed to Danish India" - Tranquebar on the basis of the AH/R Y combination by Uno Jensen. However, their find-spots are invariably located in the South Maharashtra / North Karnataka region, where the 'Arcot' rupees had been popular as standard currency and even inspired issues of Maratha mints such as Dharwad. There is a good chance that these coins were struck at one of the local mints in the region, most likely controlled by the Patwardhan Sardars.
