The depiction of the archer here fits in with the iconography of Lord Rama, the hero of the epic poem Ramayana. As it was the practice of the Kushans to show divinities on the reverse of their coins, it is most likely a depiction of Lord Rama. If that is the case, then this would be by far the earliest such depiction. The coin is therefore very significant in addition to being a very rare variety.

Mint name on this coin can be read as Nabh Kamal. The mint was earlier erroneously read as "Nabha Laal" till it was correctly read as "Nabh Kamal" in an article authored by Gurprit Singh in the Journal of IIRNS (Indian Institute of Research in Numismatic Studies).

Rulers of Cis Sutlej States had the name of the mint as Sahrand, or Sarhand (only in case of Jind state) ever since they started minting coins. Only exception we find is on these and a few similar coins of Nabha. Also, all coins of Cis Sutlej states have on the obverse the couplet attributing the minting of coins to Ahmed Shah Abdalli till more than 60 years after the death of Ahmed Shah Abdalli. All Cis Sutlej states were British Protectorates and needed the permission of the British to mint coins. The British did allow them to mint coins in the name of Abdalli because they thought of this as a harmless exercise, but did not allow them to put the Gurushahi (Nanakshahi or Gobindshahi) couplet on their coins. These and a few coins of Patiala state are exceptions.
