Shah Girish Jagshi Veera

Dr. Arvind Jain Nuclear physicist and an avid coin collector was born on Nov 29th 1946 in the beautiful green valley of Dehradun now the capital of Uttarakhand. His illustrious career at BARC Trombay, Mumbai started with a great education in the renowned institutions of Dehradun. After graduating Senior Cambridge from St. Thomas High School, batch of 1961, he went on to study at DAV College, completing his Masters in Physics. In 1968 he applied and was accepted at Bhabha Atomic Research Center as Scientific Officer / Engineer, Grade SC2 where he remained till he retired in 2004 Grade H. While at BARC he was selected to oversee the set up of the Variable Energy Cyclotron project in Salt Lake City, Kolkata. He also earned a fellowship offered by the International Atomic Energy Agency in the United States to conduct research at the Lawrence Research Laboratory, Berkeley, California. Also earned his PhD in Physics in 1979.

Retirement was not an idle period for him, he authored a book titled, "Introduction to Accelerator Physics", reason behind it being to simplify the concepts for college students.

Arvind's interest in coins began over 35 years ago. His coin collection was enriched by the guidance of late Shri S.M. Shukla in the early 90s. His dream was to recreate history of the Rupee introduced by the great Sher Shah Suri till the last Mughal emperor Bahadur Shah Zafar. He is a few coins short of completing the collection due to his failing health.

Arvind has also built a great collection of Western Kshatrapa rulers of Saurashtra's silver drachmas date wise, ( more than 60 to 70% complete of known dates)

What defines Arvind is his intelligence and his unassuming mild mannered ways, not to mention his infectious smile. He currently resides in Vadodara.

We are very much thankful Mr. Girish Veera - Oswal Auction a renowned Auction House whom Arvind never failed to consult before any purchase of significance, is also a dear friend of his. He has very kindly offered to create this catalog to showcase Arvind's extensive and intensive research for sharing a part of the history of India through coins.

Part 1

The Western Kshatrapas ruled for more than three centuries in the area of Gujarat, Malwa, and Saurashtra. The origin of Western Kshatrapas is connected to Saka rulers. Almost 39 kings are known from this great dynasty. However, only couple of kings had been mentioned in other historical sources. The rest of the all other kings are known only by their coins. This is a classic example of numismatics' importance in building up history. While preparing this catalogue, we referred important work on Western Kshatrapa numismatics, viz., "Catalogue of the coins of the Andhra Dynasty, the Western Kshatrapas, The Traikutaka Dynasty and the Bodhi Dynasty" by E. J. Rapson, "Studies in the Coinage of the Western Kshatrapas" by A Jha & D Rajgor, and the great work of AM Fishman "The Silver Coinage of the Western Kshatrapas of India". This is the best known collection ever offered in any Public Auction.

Isvaradatta – The Abhira intruder as MahaKshatrpa, Saka Era 164-165- Common Era 242-243.

During the reign of Vijayasena, MahaKshatrpa Saka 161-173, Isvaradatta's coins appear with the MahaKshatrpa title, at least for two years. His coins appear without the name of his father and dynastic connection as the name suggest.

His coins are dated in regnal years. However, there are couple of coins found with Saka date 164 which confirms his period with his regnal years, i.e. Varshe Prathme and Varshe Dwitiye. The regnal year is mentioned with his title and name on the obverse! Varshe Dwitiye coins are also found with the reversed symbols in the reverse, i.e., Sun in left field and crescents in right. These coins are very rare.

World's Largest Ancient Silver Punch Marked Coin.

351 Archaic Punch Marked Coinage, Ghagra– Gandak river basin, Silver, 354.96g, Uniface, A highly unusual and unique silver ingot with cardinal divisions marked and small bankers' marks applied. Unique, exceedingly rare.

This piece was reportedly found in a mixed hoard of punch-marked coins attributed to the Kosala and Shakya/ Malla series of archaic punch-marked coins. The hoard is said to have been found in the late 1980s in the vicinity of the town of Dumariyaganj, located near Gorakhpur in the Indo-Nepal border tract. The coins of this hoard were dispersed through dealer-networks in Mumbai and Delhi. They all shared distinct 'sigmoid 'S' within dotted border' bankers' mark suggesting they were circulating as a group when the hoard was deposited. This ingot also has similar marks. Rajgor was aware of the existence of this piece but not being privy to a photograph or exact details, he illustrated it in his book only as a schematic line drawing.

The most interesting aspect of the ingot is its weight, which roughly corresponds to an aggregate weight of 100 Karshapanas, making this a 'Shatamana' or a 'hundred-weight' piece as per the Karshapana weight standard. The Karshapana as a coin-name finds a mention in early Buddhist texts such as the Dhammapada. The ingot is fabricated from molten metal poured out as a cake and then fashioned into correct weight by chiselling the corners. The cardinal markings perhaps suggest that it was to be further divided into four smaller units. The metalworking most likely prompted a verification, which is indicated by the Shroff marks. It is plausible that this ingot was used as a store of value for 100 Karshapanas or 80 Vimshatikas. The practice of using metallic ingots as multiple units of circulating currency to be used as a store of wealth is well-known and attested in other ancient cultures of the World.

The purported find-spot of the ingot and the hoard it came from suggests a circulation well within the Shakya territory of ancient India. Shakya were one of the sixteen states comprising of 'great peoples' (Mahajanapadas) mentioned in Buddhist literature and inhabited a people of the same name. The clan is famous because the Buddha was born as a Shakya prince. Other coins found in the hoard suggest a monetary aggregate composed of metallic exchange media that was being traded along the river systems of the region, which were made by the Ghagra, Gandak and Rapti valleys. Exchange networks facilitated by riverine connections formed an important backbone for emergence and spread of the most ancient of Indian monetary systems.

The ingot is thus a very significant find and throws a very important light on how metallic exchange media were fabricated, circulated and consumed at the very beginning of advent of coinage in the Gangetic plains. Whether this happened in response to spread of issue and use of money from the North-west, where the Achaemenians are first credited with limited coin use, or whether it developed on the back of indigenous trading systems, is a question that yet remains to be answered. Perhaps, an analysis of the metallic contents of this ingot will provide some answers.

372 Sikandar ibn Muhammad Suri?, Silver Rupee, 11.34g, AH 965, Possibly Minted at Agra, likely to be one of the two or three specimens known of this ephemeral issue and the only one known to be struck to the Rupee standard, Obv: Arabic legend "Sultan Sikandar bin Muhammad Sultan Khald Allah Mulkahu wa Saltanahu" in circle and "al-Sultan bin al-Sultan al-'Adil, followed by date and mint-name Saltanat Agra (?) and "Sri Seekandara Sahi" in Devnagari in margin, Rev: The Shahada in circle and names and titles of four Caliphs in the margin (G&G# MU2). Extremely fine, exceedingly rare.

The identity of the 'Sikandar' who struck this coin is uncertain, but it is likely that he was a son of Muhammad 'Adil Suri and was installed as a puppet in the uncertain times following the second battle of Panipat between Akbar and the Suri partisan Hemu. It is plausible it was struck as Agra and if so, a Mughal governor named Iskandar Khan Uzbeg was at charge here in the year AH965 (1557-58AD). It is likely that his authority was challenged by raising a pretender by followers of Hemu. The weight of this coin is also interesting – when John Deyell first published the type, only a 'tanka'-standard coin was known. However, this is evidently a rupee-standard coin. This firmly places the coin within the circulating regime of the Rupee and not in the Chittagong imitative series, as tentatively suggested by G&G.

Mirza Nasir ud-din Baig Muhammad Khan Humayun

374 Humayun, 1st reign, Silver Tanka, 10.63g, Adl Bangalah Mint, Obv: Arabic legend "Muhammad Humayun Ghazi" in circle; other titles and 'Adl Bangala with AH date at 8 O'clock, Rev: in circle the Shahada with Arabic legend Yarzaq Allah Mantashao Ba-Ghayr Hisab; names and titles of four Caliphs in margin (G&G# B950). Very fine, extremely rare.

Concerned about the growing strength of the Afghans in Bihar and parts of Bengal under Sher Khan Suri, Humayun launched a campaign against them. He captured Chunar and subsequently occupied Lakhnauti spending around nine months in Bengal. During this time, he struck silver coins of two different standards - the older Tanka standard and the newer rupee standard – both with the inscription 'Adl Bangalah to suggest they were struck on the standard current in Bengal. The tankas struck in this short while, like this coin, are much rarer than the rupees.

Sold ` ..... Estimate: ` 75,000-1,00,000

375 Humayun, 1st reign, Silver Rupee, 11.06g, Adl Husainabad Mint, AH 9XX, Obv: Arabic legend "Muhammad Humayun Ghazi" in circle, "al-Sultan al-'Azam al-Khaqan Khallada Allah Mulkahu wa Saltanahu Adl Husainabad" in margins, Rev: Shahada in circle followed by Arabic legend "Yarzaq Allah Mantashao Ba-Ghayr Hisab" crudely engraved (Not listed in G&G). Unique so far. Extremely fine, exceedingly rare.

It is not often that a new mint is discovered for an early Mughal ruler. Husainabad was the capital of later Sultans of Bengal and founded by Alauddin Husain Shah the progenitor of the Husaini dynasty. It was located near the ancient capital of Bengal, Lakhnauti or Gaur. The coin is also historically significant as an issue of Humayun from his short-lived campaign and stay against Sher Khan the Afghan in Bengal, during which he struck some of the earliest Mughal coins on the rupee standard, closely following his rival. However, the mint-names on these coins refer to only the provincial standard (Adl Bangalah) and not a specific place name. This coin rectifies that trend. Humayun's estimation of the power and ambition of Sher Khan went terribly wrong and it resulted in his eventual escape from North India, losing all the gains his father Babur had made.

Sold ` ..... Estimate: ` 1,00,000-1,50,000

Humayun died within three months after the beginning of AH963, so the date is a rare feature too. The coin bears full AH date and a recognizable mint-name.

Khandesh Sultanate

598 Bahadur Shah, Copper Double Falus, 33.60g, Obv: Persian legend "al-Sultan Bahadur Shah bin Adil Shah", Rev: Persian legend "al-Wathiq billah al-Mannan Abu al-Fateh Nasir al-Dunya wa al-Din" (Not listed in G&G). Unique so far. Very fine for type, exceedingly rare.

This is the heaviest coin of the Sultans of Khandesh to have come to light. As remarked in G&G the copper coinage of Bahadur Shah appears to have been set to a 17-gm standard and so far half and quarter / third fractions of this basic copper denomination were known. This is evidently a double denomination in the same metrological series. Bahadur Shah was the last Sultan of Khandesh and gave a tough fight to Akbar from his fortress stronghold of Asirgarh. However, his effort fell short of the Mughal power and he surrendered to Akbar in 1601.

Malwa Sultanate

599 Mahmud Khalji, Gold Dinar, 12.83g, AH 872, Obv: Arabic legend "Dinar Mahmud Shah al-Khalji", Rev: Arabic legend "al-Mulk Lillah Ta'alah" and AH date in figures (G&G# G75 but wrongly attributed to Gujarat). About uncirculated, exceedingly rare. Goron & Goenka were aware of only one piece of this type on which the legend after the name of the Sultan was not clear, therefore they attributed the type to Mahmud I of Gujarat. On this coin, however, the dynastic name 'Khalji' is clear and thus, there is no doubt that it is a Malwa issue.

Sold ` ..... Estimate: ` 5,50,000-6,00,000

600 Mahmud II, Silver Tanka, 11.05g, AH 924 (G&G# M160). Extremely fine.

Sold ` ..... Estimate: ` 2,500-3,000

607 Akbar, Copper Dam, 20.57g, Gorbant (?) Mint, Ilahi Month Bahman (?), Year 48. Very fine, very rare.

The mint on this crude type of Dams was reportedly read as 'Gorbant' / 'Ghorband', which is the name of a region in Afghanistan. However, comparing the style and fabric of the coins with those of Gobindpur mint, it is plausible that this is a cruder variety of that mint, but with mint-name truncated as 'Gobind'.

618

617 Aurangzeb, Silver Unusual 1/16 Rupee- Nisar, 0.59g, Burhanpur Mint, with "....Julus Burhanpur" part of inscription visible on both sides. Very fine, extremely rare.

It is unusual for such a small coin to be struck in error, with reverse appearing on both sides. However, the issue of small denomination coins, particularly for use as largesse, was often prompted by emergency, such as the need for alms giving in natural or human adversities. It is therefore possible that the coin was struck as a 'Nisar' for ritual use and that allowed for such an error to occur.

685 Copper 'Do-Dandi' Paisa also known as 'Dhabu', 15.79g, struck all over Deccan during 1725 - 1825, in the name of Shah Alam II. Very fine, extremely rare.

On this variety the usual 'Julus' inscription on the reverse is replaced with the Devanagari legend 'Chhatra / Pati', much like on copper 'Shivrai' paisas. Coins of this particular variety are exceedingly rare and might well have been struck at a mint like Satara where the title 'Chhatrapati' had a more meaningful weightage. Till date, only a handful are known.

Sold ` ..... Estimate: ` 10,000-12,000

688 Daulatabad, Silver Rupee, 11.48g, in the name of Shah Alam II, RY 14, Obv: Symbol of horizontal Shiv Pindi, Rev: Trident on reverse (M&W 'miscellaneous' T17a). Very fine, extremely rare.

The mint-name here is clearly engraved as 'Daulatabad'. A mint of the Nizam of Hyderabad operated at Daulatabad and coins with the same RY having symbols with a distinct Nizam affinity are known as well. M&W comment that "the authors have no explanation for the issue of two distinct types of rupees in the same year from Daulatabad: one ostensibly Maratha and the other an issue of the Nizam". However, a clear reference to a Maratha mint being operational in Daulatabad fort is found in the charter given by Tukoji Holkar to operate the mint at Chandwad in 1774. While the city of Daulatabad was in Nizam's possession, the treaty of Rakshasbhuwan ensured that the fort of Daulatabad was in Maratha hands.
